Museums and galleries are unique places, because people can not only entertain themselves there, but gain some significant knowledge in history, art and other fields of study. That is the reason why museums and galleries all over the world attract so many visitors every year. 44

But unstoppable progress offers new ways of entertainment such as TV and ~~the~~ Internet, so we can guess that such places as museums are losing their popularity. To check whether it is true or not I collected some statistics on the attendance of 4 of the most famous museums of England and in this report I am going to analyse the data. 60

On the sheet we can see some information about the number of visitors of British Museum, National Gallery, Tate Gallery, Natural History Museum and Science Museum in the years 2013, 2015 and 2017. If we compare total amount of visits in 2013 (13.7 mln), in 2015 (14.2 mln) and in 2017 (16.1 mln), we can see that people tend to visit museums more and more often. 66

What also worth noting is a great difference in number of people's visiting NHM and SM in 2013 and in 2015 and 2017. After introducing admission charges in 2014 and making the tickets more expensive these 2 museums have lost more than a half of their visitors. 47

Comparing the newest statistics we have, we can see that BrM, Nat. Gall. and TG are ^{much} more frequently visited than NHM and SM, although in 2013 people chose to visit NHM and SM more often. 56

~~This information~~ That fact shows us that one of the most important thing for increasing the amount of visitors is making the ticket price affordable. People don't want to spend much money for a few hours in a museum or gallery. 29

According to statistics museums are more popular than picture galleries. Let's compare: in 2017 Brit. M. was visited by 5.6 mln people and

PKB 2 + 2 + 2 + 0 + 0 = 65
 OT 1 + 1 + 1 + 0 = 35
 2017 - 2 + 1 + 2 = 5
